London, Sept. 30.—If the Bolsheviki are compelled to leave Moscow they will attempt to destroy the city and slaughter the bourgeoise wholesale, declared Hans Vorst in a letter to the Berlin Tageblatt. Innocent bourgeoise hostages, the letter adds, still are being shot by the thousands.

AUSPICIOUS START

Liberty Bond Committee Reports Large Sales—Progress Thus Far Satisfactory—Everyone Should Buy One or More Bonds Without Delay.

Buy more Liberty Bands.

There has been a heavy advance sale of the bonds. Every bank in the city reports big sale. That Alexandria this time is going over the top in a hurry there can be doubt judging from the spontaneous sales already made.

The local committee today was advised that Alexandria's allotment is $621,300. This apportionment is based on banking resources, population, etc. Allotment for Alexandria county is $300,000.

A meeting of all the committees in charge of the sale of the bonds is scheduled to be held at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce when final plans for a vigorous campaign will be mapepd out.

Already the women's committee is actively at work and many large bond subscriptions have been turned in through its members.

Members of the committee are of the opinion that longe before the close of the campaign October 19, Alexandria will have gone over the top. However, Alexandria is anxious to make a better showing than in the three previous campaigns for the sale of bonds and with this in view it is hoped that the allotment may be doubled. With this end in view the campaign in the interest of the sale from now on will be an intensive one and everyone is asked to come forward without solicitation and buy one or more bonds. It will of course, be utterly impossible for the members of the committee to see every individual and for that reason all persons are asked to come forward and purchase their bonds without delay. Information regarding terms, etc., may be obtained at any of the banks of the city or from members of the committee in charge or at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce which is the headquarters of the committee in charge.

GRAND THEATER

Conway Bass, the detective, informs Lady Townsend that Ultus has threatened to steal her diamond pendant, and she gives it to him to protect for her. Ultus is at the Townsend ball, disguised, and a little later appears before Bass and Sir Gilbert Townsend. Bass signals his men, and Ultus is captured and taken away in an automobile. Before the automobile gets out of the Townsend grounds, Bass finds that his plain-clothes men are really confederates of Ultus. The diamond pendant is taken from him, and he is thrown from the car. Releasing his men who have been tied up by Ultus, Bass trails Ultus to the house of mystery, but the daring adventurer makes a thrilling escape down a fire

An item in a newspaper announcing that Townsend has sold an immense diamond to the Carinthian Ambassador gives Ultus inspiration for another daring scheme. With three confederates, he gets into the Embassy and disguises himself like the aged Ambassador. The next day, Townsend is to deliver the priceless gem, but warned that Ultus may attempt to get possession of it, he enlists the protection of Bass and a strong guard. The detective assures him if Uluts attempts to take the diamond, he will be captured.

HUMPHREYS RAILROAD

Engineers Determine to Span Stream With Trestle—Main Body With Approaches Will be 1,000 Feet Long.

Camp Humphreys, Va., Sept. 30.—Apparently there is not enough earth and gravel in Fairfax county to make the fill across Dogue creek for the street car line which will connect Camp Humphreys with the National Capital by way of Mt. Vernon.

After dumping more than 200,000 cubic feet of the surface of what was formerly George Washington's Mt. Vernon estate into the creek, which separates the camp from Mt. Vernon, only to have it sink as fast as it was deposited in the creek, the engineers in charge of the construction of the line have given it up as a bad job and will build a trestle across the creek instead. The engineers figured that it would probably take one-half million cubic feet of earth to build the causeway.

A. P. Dise, of Glen Rock, Pa., a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, engineer in charge of construction, has a big job in getting and keeping labor to build the electric railroad, which is expected to be completed to the bank of Dogue creek by November 1.

The main body of the trestle, with its approaches on either side of the creek, will be 1,000 feet long It is directly in front of the Woodlawn mansion, which was built by George Washington, for his niece, Nellie Custis.

More than half the causeway has been completed by the civilian contractor for the Washington, Mt. Vernon, and Humphreys electric railroad, but just how much weight it can stand is still a matter of serious doubt. Recently a mule team and scoop shovel was driven out on it, only to have a section of the fill give way and deposit the mules up to their necks in the soft, slimy, depths of the creek, from which they were extricated with great difficulty.

So far the section completed has not been sufficiently stable to bear the weight of a loaded wagon, and the earth for filling in has had to be hauled entirely by mule teams and ordinary scoop shovels from a distance of about one-fourth of a mile.

Soundings on the right bank of the creek show two feet of water and eighteen feet of mud, while on the left bank, or Camp Humphreys side of the creek, there is about the same stage of water and eight feet of mud

RICHMOND TONIGHT

Fred Stone, for many years a foremost comedian in musical comedies, makes his public debut in motion pictures in "The Goat," a splendid photo-play which will be seen in the Richmond Theatre tonight. Mr. Stone is noted for his athletic prowess, and his skill in all forms of agile and dexterous gymnastic work Upon the stage in many of his finest musical comedy productions he gave continuously new examples of his expertness in this direction.

Mr Stone is, perhaps, best known for his eccentric comedy roles, such as in "The Wizard of Oz," but in "The Goat" it will be Fred Stone almost in personae propia, so far as make-up is concerned The character he portrays in "The Goat" is that of a young iron worker who is infatuated with the movies and he has many interesting adventures The play abounds in movements of real pathos, human nature and above all, wholesome comedy. DYING MAN'S REQUEST

Alfred Farmer, a Short Time Before His End Makes Own Funeral Arrangements—Wants No Minister of Gospel to Officiate at His Funeral.

Realizing that his death was but a short time off Alfred Farmer, about fifty years old, unmarried, a cabinet maker, who roomed at the old City Hotel, Cameron and Royal streets, when seized with an attack of acute indigestion shortly before noon yesterday hastened to the residence of his neighbor, Mrs. Belle Emmett, 132 North Royal street, only two doors away, and gave explicit instructions for his funeral and burial.

Farmer directed that at his death no minister of the Gospel be called to perform the last rites for the dead. He named his undertaker and also directed that his body be buried in Bethel cemetery. Farmer also told Mrs. Emmett that he carried a small life insurance policy and that his funeral expenses be paid from this, and in the event there was anything left she to keep the balance for her trouble.

Mrs. Emmett made Farmer as comfortable as possible and applied home remedies. A physician also was summoned but before he arrived Farmer died. His death came in less than an hour after he entered her home.

Farmer, so far as can be learned, had no near relatives in this city. For a number of years he was employed at the Washington Navy Yard and more recently had been employed by James C. La Porte, this city. The body was taken to Demaine's mortuary chapel and prepared for burial.

Spanish Grippe Largely Due to Loose Personal Habits of Thoughtless People—How to Avoid It.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 30.—Superstitious people who constantly watch for signs and portents will doubtless regard it as a significant fact that Spanish grippe alias influenza made its first appearance at Camp Lee on Friday, September 13.

But common-sense mortals know almost without being told, that the malady is not in the least wise particular as to the date of its coming, and that once it gets an impetus, it respects neither high nor low, and travels with the wings of the wind. In plain English, Spanish influenza is more than likely to come your way or as the late James Whitcomb Riley might put it, these sneezing, cough ing "gobbleuns will git you if yo don't watch out."

So the two important questions today are: What can one do to prevent the disease, or having "got" it, what can one do to get rid of it? First of all, be it remembered that Spanish grippe is one of those spray-bone diseases whose spread depends largely upon the personal habits of individuals. Those who feel themselves in the clutches of the malady should therefore, consider themselves in duty bound to "cover their sneezes and coughs"—that is, to exercise the greatest care in the use of their handkerchiefs lest they infect others. And by the same token, all persons, sick or well, should at all times abstain from putting their fingers in their mouths—a habit too common among children and not altogether unusual among adults. Take pains, too, to avoid crowded, ill ventilated places where many persons assemble.

If all men were religiously to observe these simple rules Spanish grippe—to say nothing of several other maladies—would be put to rout and its victims would number only hundreds instead of untold thousands.

But humankind, alas, is slow in schooling itself to the observance of even the simplest measures for the prevention of disease and so Spanish influenza probably will soon be here there and every where. It is good to know that the malady is seldom a menace to life. Of discomfort, however, it affords a plenty. First comes the sudden onset of a severe chill, followed by a headache and pain in the back and limbs. Acute catarrhal conditions of the throat and nose appear, also and the fever for a while may go up to 103, possibly higher.

Those attacked by the disease should go promptly to bed, get a doctor and strictly obey his orders. And above all things, they should conscientiously avoid passing the infection to others.

The two flyers reached Rapidan at noon yesterday from Washington to participate in the Liberty Loan drive at a big basket picnic in the Orange town.

They entertained the big crowd of country folk with various air stunts and at 5 o'clock started from Belmont Field on the return trip to Washington. After flying 600 yards they were seen to turn back and make for Belmont Field. When about 150 feet from earth the airplane fell. The machine crumpled up and Armentrout was caught under the engine and had his jaw crushed. He did not regain consciousness.

RIFT IN HUN ALLIANCE

With the welding of the armies of the Entente into a compact whole, under command of the Inter-Allied War Council, guided by the mastery strategy of Marshal Foch, apparently has come the first break in the united front of the Central Powers.

Bulgaria, smallest of the Teutonic allies, seemes to have struck her colors. Premier Malinoff has asked for an armistice to consider terms of peace. Whether he is acting upon his own responsibility as the representative of a revolutionary party, or with the approval of King Ferdinand and the government, remains in doubt. In either case, however, there is little doubt that Bulgaria has ceased to be a military factor in the war. Her armies are in full retreat and her soil has been invaded.

The secession of the Balkan state from the thraldom of Germany will be almost as severe a blow to the Teutonic alliance as was the collapse of Russia to the Allies.

If Bulgaria lays down her arms, Turkey, her armies shattered by the coup of General Allenby in Palestine, will be cut off from her Allies. Her lines of communication will be severed except across the Black Sea through Rumania or over the mountain peaks of trans-Caucasia into Russia where the grip of the German controlled Bolsheviki is becoming steadily weaker.

With her supplies of German made munitions and raw materials hanging by such a slender thread, military observers believe the Ottoman empire will have no course left but to follow the example of her Balkan neighbor.

But it makes little difference to the Entente whether the Turk abandons Germany and Austria. If Bulgaria quits, he can no longer be a menace to their plans.

The back door of Austria will stand ajar before the victorious British, French, Servian, Greek and Italian armies plunging ahead through the mountains of liberatd Servia.

With Bulgaria evidently fallen by the wayside with Turkey staggering and with Austria a welter of interal discord and discontent the shaken armies of Emperor William are grudgingly falling back upon their own frontiers before the irresistible blows of Marshal Foch's British, French and American troops.

THE WAR MUST GO ON

The war must go on until Germany is whipped of justice says the New York Times, and this is the conclusion of all patriotic newspapers. When she is whipped, says so, and declares readiness to accept the terms we are going to impose on her have many times been stated ons will not lay down their she is disarmed, made for further evil deeds. The sinner may be pardoned high, Germany's cofession imence will not suffice to set e, to deliver her from pains and ties. Though on her knees she tears of contrition, denounces st and abjure future sin, the nations will not believe her. "The old German truth and honor have been thrown to the dogs," said one of her professors. Perjurers have poor standing in court and the German reputation is of the worst. Bonds for good behavior will be expected of Germany, and the sureties will not be of her choosing. They are being well looked to at this moment; they will be sufficient. The justice meted out to Germany must be of the severest, for not only is her transgression great, but her disposition is evil, and that is so because politically she is among the most backward nations. The Germans boast of their kultur. But their political conceptions have not yet advanced to the stage the French had reached at the time of the revolution. The English bill of rights antedatd the revolution by a century. Although it embodied nothing new, it was a reaffirmation of rights already ancient and dear to the English people. The German people, with rudimentary notions of human liberty, would look for the imprisonment of their representatives who should today, even humbly, lay such a pronouncement at the foot of the throne. A people who do not dare assert their own rights will not restrain their soulless rulers from forays against the rights of other peoples. There is no living with Germany save after she has been shorn of the power to do wrong. That is why the war must go on.

THE PURPLE EAST

We fear the Purple East presents a very drab aspect to the Germans says the Philadelphia Record. The confidence with which they annexed the entire Orient—in their imaginations—is the measure of their despair over the news that they have been getting from that quarter, not rapidly but very steadily ,for a good while.

In the first two years of the war it was going to be trouble at all to eliminate Great Britain from Egypt; the Turks would do that. And with the Bagdad Railway and the Persian Gulf in their possession the treasures of the Indian princes and the diamonds of Golconda were not very far away. Dutch colonies would fall into the German lap. With the collapse of England Japan would eat out of Germany's hand. Turkey and Persia and Afghanistan and Beluchistan would yield profits to Berlin and Hamburg and Munich, and a museum was already projected for Stuttgart that would show German capitalist the easiest routes to the wealth of Ormuz and of Ind.

In talking of these things the German papers scarcely used the future tense. It was not necessary to go to the circumlocution of speaking of what would be by and by; it was just as well to talk about what is; practically it was achieved.

But the details have all gone wrong. The Turks did not drive the British out of Egypt, and the Suez Canal failed to fall under German control. The British have advanced well through Mesopotamia, and are about 60 miles from Mosul. In Syria the defeat of the Turks, who were to have conquered the Suez, has been followed by their smashing by General Allenby, in which probably 40,000 Turks have been taken prisoner and all the artillery and transport and supplies of two Turkish armies have been captured. Turkey has no means of replacing these losses. Germany cannot spare a man with her own western front caving in steadily and the Americans getting close to the Briey ore district. Bulgaria and Turkey have not for some time been of any military value to Germany, but they helped to maintain in the mind of Germany that mirage of the Purple East, which cannot survive the simultaneous collapse of the military forces of both of those minor accessories after the fact to the crime of Germany.

NON ESSENTIAL WORKERS.

Plans are maturing through the United States employment service to put the "final touches" on those who persist in non-essential work. The lists of all industries engaged in things that are not promotive of the war's progress will be published, and all those who continue in these enterprises will be published and held up to public shame.

Such as remain in the employment of concerns designated as non-essentials are to be denominated as holders of "slacker jobs" and their names are to be published by the employment service as such. Bill-posters and other forms of advertisement are to be used in order to render the "slacker" status conspicuous, and to accentuate the disloyal character of those who remain in such work.

Besides, every man so listed will be advertised as performing work that a woman could as easily perform, and the attention of the public will be specially called to this feature of the "slacker job." The slogan, "men for men's jobs," will be taken up by various organizations and those who 'hang on" for whatever reason, may find themselves visited by the contempt of all patriotic citizens. (Richmond Virginian.)

WAR AND THE BIBLE

Mark John Levy contributes the following to a Baltimore paper:

Can Christians on the fields of France
For human freedom fight,
And daily slay the German hordes
And keep their conscience bright?

Does Scripture give no sure command
For worshipers in war?
Can Christians make munitions here
And keep their consciences pure?

When kings for lust of conquest use
Their armaments of hate
To ravage peaceful countries near,
They cry for love too late!

The sword is then God's minister,
Saint Paul in Romans writes;
And Joel in his prophecy
Shows why God's army fights.

And for this cause we tribute pay,
The great apostle says,
To link home-workers in the war
With him who fights and prays.

AMERICAN ANTHEM.

Written by Edwin Fairfax Naulty in 1898 and dedicated to Anne Harewood Washington.

What we have gained in blood and fire,
We hold in peace and love and truth.
We guard the freedom of the sire
With all the strength and faith of youth!
With dauntless hearts we seek the best
In peace or war for Right we stand!
In North and South in East and West,
One God, one folk, one flag, one land
America! Our lives for Thee!
America! Forever free!
Our heritage we shall defend
With sword to foe but love for friend,
And God to guide us to the end.
America!
Our hearths, our homes, our kith, our kin
In love we bind unto our souls;
For these we seek our bread to win,
They are the end of our goals
Save two—and these—with willing hand
To serve our God and Native Land,
Each one as best be to his parts,
And all of us with all our hearts.
America! Our lives for Thee!
America! Forever free!
Our heritage we shall defend
With sword to foe but love for friend,
And God to guide us to the end.
America!

NO PLACE LIKE HOME.

Judgeon Molars was fishing. For two hours and twenty minutes he had sat on a hard stone, intently watching the surface of the placid water, on which his bob floated motionless.

Suddenly a great indescribable sensation filled his being, for he half thought that perhaps he might have seen the suspition of a suggestion of a slight ripple around the bob.

But no, the line remained slack and the water motionless and with a sweet expectant smile and his temper quite unruffled, Judgeon Molars sat there patiently for another uneventful hour and a half. Then his whole skeleton quivered deliciously within him, for the bob was swaying percentibly.

But it was only the wind, and after remaining there as motionless as the surrounding scenery for two more hours, he arose regretfully and wound up his line, remarking to himself philosophically, "Oh well, better luck next time."

That night he took his wife to the theatre. He made her take ten minutes from her own dressing to tie his tie for him just the way he wanted it, and as a result she kept him waiting two minutes and fourteen seconds, which so put him out that he refused to open his mouth all the way to the theatre, and during the performance every time she applauded he didn't and every time she didn't he did.

U. S. SOLDIER CRUCIFIED

Ohio Sergeant's Body Found by Own Brother, Who Settles Score.

The crucifixion of an American sergeant by Germans and the finding of the mutilated body by the sergeant's own brother is recounted in a statement issued by the Salvation Army. The authority given is Dr. R. H. Howard, a member of the St. Louis chamber of commerce, who visited France to gain first-hand information. Dr. Howard wore the Salvation Army uniform. In his statement to the Salvation Army he said in part:

Private A. C. Cole on July 21 went over the top with the Americans of a certain sector. His brother, Sergeant A. B. Cox, of East Liverpool, O., of the same company, became separated during the fighting. Later, Private Cole, fighting his way past a farm building, came upon an American soldier spitted with bayonets through hands and feet—stone dead, of course. The bayonets were German.

"Cole saw that it was his own brother. He took down the crucified man ,asked only that the body be laid aside to get a Christian burial, which was later attended to ,then plunged forward. And before that day was over he had evened up the score. I cannot give the details, but the American boys were satisfied with the penalty Fritz paid for that piece of fiendishness."

Dr. Howard related another stoy of Geman barbarity. Joseph Chicano, a machine gunner, had an eye shot out and was captured. Instead of giving him first aid, his captors stood him against a wall and questioned him in German, a language he did not understand. When he failed to answer an officer shot him in his hip. After lying four days, suffering agonies from his untended wounds, Chicano with his one good eye, saw the Germans being swept back by the Americans. He begged for medical assistance.

A German officer paused, listened to his pleadings, then, taking careful aim with his revolver, shot at his heart, barely missing it, but inflicting a third wound.

With the victorious advance of the American troops came the Red Cross, and Chicano was saved. "When I left France," said Dr. Howard, "he was alive and doing nicely."

Dr. Howard concluded: "I say to the people of America get that German or he will get you. And if he ever gets you, all your ideas of an exquisite hell will fade into nothing."

BUSINESS AFTER THE WAR

Will the War Be Followed by Business Prosperity or Stagnation?

Many people are wondering just what will be the business situation when peace comes. A few are openly skeptical as to the prospect and are inclined to talk bessimistically but evidently they are either short-sighted or altogether blind, for the signs of the times all point to great business activity and prosperity in America after the war.

This country will be the one great creditor nation. England, France, Italy, Russia and other countries will not only, like America, owe huge war debts to their own people, but they will be indebted to America to the extent of billions of dollars. Then too, the destruction of great areas of their urban and rural sections, and the depletion of their resources will make it necessary for them to call upon America for manufactured products of many kinds as well as for great quantities of raw material. Moreover, the antipathy which all the world is certain to feel towards Germany and German products for many years to come as well as the cordiality which they are likely to feel towards America for her powerful assistance in destroying the German menace, are certain to add greatly to the extent and volume of our foreign trade after the war not only with Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and Canada, but also with Central and South America. This trade will also be greatly facilitated by our enormous and rapidly growing merchant marine.

Foreign trade will do much to quicken American business after the war, but business will also be greatly stimulated by domestic conditions, for, while taxes may be heavy for some years, they will soon be reduced much below the wartime level; then too, there will be no more need for buying new issues of government bonds, and the millions of people who are now saving and economizing to buy thrift stamps and bonds will be free to purchase the many things that appeal to them and contribute to their comfort and happiness. Indeed the reaction from the long financial strain and stress of wartime saving is likely to result, for a time at least, in extraordinarily heavy purchasing, all of which will have a tendency to make business prosper.

Readjustments in business will of course be necessary as the armies demobilize and the boys come home again, and also as the munition plants and other strictly war industries slow down, but it will not take long for pre-war industrial conditions to re-establish themselves and, unless the war continues much longer than now seems probable, it is extremely unlikely that this process of readjustment will seriously delay the coming of prosperous business conditions in America after the war.—Copyright 1918 by General Welfare League.

GERMANY'S POSITION

Dark, Despondent Picture Drawn by Vorwaerts.

In an immediate creation of a truly democratic German government Vorwaerts sees the only salvation of the empire from utter defeat, invasion and destruction.

The fact that the article was permitted to be published and that excerpts were allowed to be sent beyond the German borders is regarded here as extremely significant. The article follows:

"We must today consider the following situation as possible: Bulgaria deserts the quadruple alliance and makes peace with the entente. Austria-Hungary and Turkey join in this step. We lose our influence in Poland and the Ukraine. Our southwest arm reaches no further than Bodenbach (in Bohemia, near the Saxon frontier.)

Would Stand Alone.

"Then the German people stand alone against America, France and Britain, and are fighting with their backs to the wall.

"Before our eyes the picture grows —German soldiers are discouraged. The West front breaks. The enemy streams into Germany. German towns are enveloped in smoke and flame. The retreating army and another army ,that of fugitives from the invaded regions, roll eastward. The stream overfloods the towns spreads depression. There is no food and no coal. Industry is stagnant. Hundreds of thousands die.

"Bloody attempts are made to crush revolutionary outbreaks. The war is inside instead of outside the German frontier. Death everywhere. "The government no longer has strength of resistance. It concedes all the enemy demands.

NEWS OF THE DAY

Abandoning all hope of rescuing alive 15 miners known to be left in the north mine of the Franklin Coal and Coke Company, Royalton, Ill., in which 21 men were trapped by an explosion, the main shaft of the mine was sealed in an attempt to smother the flames.

The Chilean Government has ordered the naval authorities to occupy with armed forces all the interned German ships in Chilean harbors. Crews of German ships self-interned in Chilean ports recently attempted to damage or sink the vessels.

A dispatch from Paris says since the entire department of the Somme has been liberated from the German invaders. In the last three days part of the department of the Ardennes has passed into French hands for the first time since 1914.

The U. S. battleship Minnesota struck a mine off Delaware Breakwater early yesterday morning. This announcement was made by the Navy Department. There were no lives lost, according to the reports received by the Department, and the Minnesota is proceeding to port under her own power. Officials of the Navy Department are convinced that the Minnesota was not hit by a German torpedo, but struck a mine left by a German submarine. The last U-boat is known to have left American coastal waters about August 22. This submarine and its predecessors strewed mines in considerable quantity, it is believed. The search for them is going on all the time and the menace consequently lessening.

In a brochure just published Herr Michaelis, former German chancellor, says: "Without doubt we shall come to great distress after the conclusion of peace. Our entire economic life will be affected. After the war dearth in nearly everything will prevail for a long time, and even if Germany receive indemnities economic distress will be terrible."

The Germans are forcing school children to help in the harvests, a circular distributed in the Munich schools saying: "If the children of 10 years or over refuse to collect the plants, the holidays will be cancelled and they will be compelled to undertake the harvesting in school hours."

A well-to-do Brussels woman writes in a letter: "I have a cloak made out of the hood of my husband's service cape, a waist made of his football tunic and a dress made out of a sheet; mamma has managed a dress out of the dining room tablecloth; my sisters have cloaks made out of woolen blankets. This is funny until you think how badly off the people are."

Co-operating with the Anglo-Belgian offensive in Flanders British bombing planes Saturday dropped 13 tons of bombs and set two German trains on fire. Eight German machines were brought down. The British lost thirteen planes, last night's war office statement on aviation says.

"While the bread ration in Vienna has been reduced one-half, there are districts in German Bohemia where the ration is only one-fourth or one-sixth," M. Seliger asserted recently in the Reichsrat. "There are even places where the bread is now being distributed by the slice."

NEED BATH ONCE A WEEK

Sanitary Regulations for Convict Camps Prescribe at Least One Good Wash Every Seven Days

Richmond, Va., Sept. 30.—If you object to taking at least one bath every seven days—a "general bath" that insures absolute cleanliness—don't commit a crime and get yourself sent to one of Virginia's thirty-six convict camps, for the State Health Board's new sanitary regulations require a thorough weekly wash of all prisoners working on the roads or in the lime grinding plants.

Furthermore the rules declare that the "general bath" must be taken in "previously unused water" and that each convict shall have an individual towel and an individual basin.

Convicts now expiating their crimes in the camps will fare much more comfortably in months to follow when the new regulations become generally observed. These rules were prepared in accordance with the provisions of an act passed by the last General Assembly and concern the comfort and welfare of some 1,300 unfortunates. Of this number from fifteen to twenty per cent are men convicted of misdemeanors while the remainder are felons. Both classes are under the same management, though the "jailbirds" present a somewhat more difficult problem than the felons, as the latter all undergo careful physical examinations at the penitentiary before leaving for the roads.

Particular stress is laid by the new regulations on the importance of vaccination against smallpox and typhoid fever, and camp physicians are urged to be on a constant lookout for tuberculosis and other communicable diseases. Flies, mosquitoes and vermin are branded as enemies to be fought and exterminated, and methods for getting rid of them are carefully explained. The new rules also embody valuable information as to the location of camps, construction of buildings, water supply and equipment, food and nutrition, clothing, beds and bedding, sewage disposal, bathing, recreation and religious services In order that the convicts may occasionally relax, games such as checkers, dominoes, etc and plenty of reading matter, are specially recommended, as are outdoor sports For permanent camps—particularly at the lime-grinding plants—shower baths and flush closets are urged.

While the appropriation made for the changes and improvements suggested will hardly suffice to meet the needs of the situation, the statute under which the State Board of health is acting nevertheless represents an important step in the right direction.

Dr. R. W. Garnett, acting assistant State Health Commissioner among his other duties, will have the sanitary supervision of the camps, and in addition to requiring monthly reports as to their condition, will frequently inspect them. He is enjoying the hearty co-operation of the Governor, the Superintendent of the Penitentiary and the State Highway Commissioner.

DISCONTENT IN GERMANY.

Letters Taken From Prisoners Show Discontent Among Civilians and Soldiers.

London, Sept. 30.—Scarcity of food and ruinent in Germany has the Teutons near the breaking point, according to letters taken from German prisoners by one of the French armies and now published here. One soldier wishes "our fellow-countrymen could see our weariness," while another wishes "the cursed show would soon come to an end." A third declares he trusts the communiques of the enemy rather than those of his own countrymen.

One German woman, writing to her husband at the front complains that their children have to be sent fasting to school.

From an officer in Belgium comes the complaint that even pigs are provided with better food than the soldiers receive. Persons over eighteen years have had their bread ration reduced by half a pound and those between twelve and eighteen by a pound.

A poignant cry comes from a woman in Essen. She writes:

"It is the children who grieve me most. They are continually crying: 'Mother, I am hungry.'"

Striking evidence of the lowering of the morale of the civilian population is contained in the following letter written from Kattewitz.:

"We are in a bad way here. We have very little bread, no fat and no meat. It makes me mad. I should like to send you something, but we can't get nothing. Let us hope there will be a decision soon either one way or the other, because there is no way of enduring this any longer. We are always hearing of cases of robbery with violence and the police are kept busy with the population of thieves. There is nothing to be surprised at because when everyone is in want people will steal where there is anything to take.'

Conditions in the food situation are graphically brought out in the following letter from a woman at Trachau:

"Ersatz (substitute coffee is only available every three months, and half a pound a head. How far can that go? We have been without potatoes for a fortnight. A pair of stockings costs about 25 marks" ($6.)

There is a powerful appeal in a letter from Rissa:

"It is your duty to fight for your country, but it is only for the grey you are fighting. The poor are only more oppressed and wretched poor suffer the most. For all this week there are only two pounds of potatoes, three and a half pounds of bread, an eighth of a pound of butter, a quarter pound of jam and two soup cubes. That is our food for all this week."

The morale of the fighting men is shown in these extracts:

"We must fight alas, but we don't know why—it must come to an end soon, as we are at the end of our strength. Our reserves are almost exhausted and our supplies are absolutely bad. You in the rear cannot imagine our losses. We have at present nearly two and a half million dead and seriously wounded. We are conquerors, it is understood, we are wearing ourselves out in conquering—only the diplomats can get us peace."

VA. DRAFT ADVISERS.

Named by Department of Agriculture —They Are to Work With District Boards And Present Needs for Skilled Farm Workers.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—The Department of Agriculture announces the appointment of the following men to act with the district draft boards of Virginia as advisers regarding agricultural needs:

N. E. McGuire, Roanoke, Virginia the facts about farm-labor needs in for western district with headquarters at 202 First National bank building, Roanoke, Va.

J. B. Watkins, Midlothian, Virginia, agricultural adviser to district board for eastern district, with headquarters at 425 postoffice building, Richmond, Virginia.

The agricultural advisers are not to be members of the district boards but are to furnish to the boards facts relative to farm labor requirements, not only to their own districts but of the entire country. Such information will be supplied to the advisers by the Department of Agriculture. The advisers also may concern themselves with individual cases before the district board. County agents of the Department of Agriculture have been supplied with questionnaries to be sent out for the purpose of securing agricultural adviser to district board the counties.

Your Winter's Coal Supply

On account of rulings of the U. S. Fuel Administration, it seems doubtful if Virginia will receive sufficient anthracite coal to supply the demands. If present rulings are maintained, this shortage will be very great in Alexandria and we earnestly advise our customers to put in a reasonable amount of bituminous coal as a safeguard against a coal shortage next winter.

We are now securing some very fine bituminous coal which we believe will work in all characters of coal burners but the ratrobe stoves.

VIRGINIA NEWS

Col. R. N. Lewis, of Virginia, a veteran of the Confederate army, who served under Gen. R. E. Lee, taught a countryman a lesson in patriotism in front of the court house in Hagerstown, Md., while a band was playing "The Star-Spangled Banner." A hulking son of the soil sauntered into the crowd wearing his hat and was listening to the national anthem when the doughty veteran observed him. Approaching him, Col. Lewis quietly removed the man's hat and handed it to him with a graceful bow. The man received his hat without a word while the crowd cheered the colonel, who is a type of the punctilious gentleman of the old school.

Reports received last week indicate Spanish influenza is spreading in the Roanoke section. Seventy-five cases, said to be of a mild type, have developed at Hollins College, and yesterday morning one of the young ladies died of pneumonia contracted after an attack of influenza. Thirty cases have developed among a crew of Norfolk and Western laborers on the outskirts of the city. The number of cases among the children at the Baptist Orphanage, at Salem, has increased to fifty-eight.

Five hundred Confederate veterans, pensioners, have died in Virginia since last the checks were sent out. Returned checks total 15,000. The death rate among Confederate veterans in Virginia has been heavy in the past few months.

By appropriating $2,000,000 for the construction of about twenty-five miles of road, connecting up the military stations and naval bases around the vicinity of Hampton Roads, the United States has taken the first important step in co-operation with the States in the construction of military highways, as publicly advocated by Governor Davis and State Highway Commissioner Coleman since July 1. This appropriation for Virginia roads in the state was made by a Presidential order, according to information received by Commissioner Coleman yesterday.

The following changes in and additions to the staff of the extension division of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute have been made, effective at once: Henry E. Allanson, assistant to the director, with headquarters at the central office, Blacksburg; Mrs. Mary Moore Davis, emergency assistant state agent in home demonstration work, with headquarters at Blacksburg; Mrs. Hah Williams Polhill, emergency district urban agent, with headquarters at Richmond, succeeding Miss Ellen A. Reynolds.

RUMANIAN UPRISING

Like a flash of lightning word spread through the kingdom that the Germans are withdrawing their troops, presumably to send them to the Balkan front and keep Bulgaria in line. As the first columns of field-gray soldiers passed the frontier, the long-brewing rebellion against the hated invaders is said to have broken loose. Last night, report has it, the uprising is sweeping Rumania with the force of a typhoon.

The German civil authorities are removing their archives from Bucharest, trying to get out all documents before the enraged populace takes revenge in its own hands. It is believed a strong German armed force will be maintained in the former capital to the last.
